THE FIGHT IS OFF

Corbett and McGovern Will Not Meet in Louisville.

Injunction Granted By the Court of Appeals to Stop the Contest.

MONEY TO BE REFUNDED

Louisville, Sept. 20.—The McGovern-Corbett contest has been declared off, and the Southern Athletic Club will refund $31,400 to ticket holders and is out $5,000 because of official interference.

The injunction granted yesterday by Judge Emmett Field, of the Jefferson circuit court, restraining the Southern Athletic Club from pulling off the McGovern-Corbett contest for the featherweight championship of the world at Louisville on Monday evening next, was sustained by Associate Judge James D. White of the court of appeals late yesterday afternoon at Frankfort.

Judge White invited the full bench of the court to sit with him and hear the case, which all but one member did, and the decision is one of the court, though the motion to dissolve the injunction was made before a single member of it. A majority of the court expressed the opinion that the glove contest which was enjoined in the lower court is a prize fight and that it is immaterial whether the purse was to be evenly divided. The six members of the court sitting divided equally on the most important legal question raised in the case, that of whether the chancellor had power by injunction, to restrain the commission of a criminal act.

At midnight it was announced that the fight was off absolutely and unconditionally. An attempt was made to have the two men appear in a six-round bout at one of the theaters, but this was objected to by McGovern's manager, and after a conference of several hours' duration between several sporting men, the idea of having the two men appear was given up.

BIG MAIL.

THIS HAS BEEN THE BIGGEST WEEK IN LOCAL HISTORY.

This has been the banner week for outgoing mail in the local postoffice. There is no exact account kept of the matter sent out, but the amount of labor it requires to put the stuff out and the length of time consumed in this duty all goes to show that this has been the biggest week in the history of the postoffice. The mail matter is on the steady increase and one class of the stuff sent in is the advertisements sent out by the advertising firms. The manufacturers here are advertising more extensively in this way, though the mails, and a great deal of the stuff sent out can be classified in this lot. The correspondence is unusually large and the amount of business transacted is surprising.

SMALL CROWD.

THE MAYFIELD - EVANSVILLE EXCURSION NOT WELL PATRONIZED.

The Mayfield and Evansville excursion passed through the city this morning at 7:10 o'clock with a light patronage.

There were only a few Mayfield people on the train but when Paducah was reached about 50 passengers were added. Three coaches were added to the train here to handle the crowds that will be met at stations between here and Evansville. The train will pass through again Sunday night or Monday morning on its return.

JUDGE ROBERTSON ILL.

Judge W. W. Robertson, of Mayfield, was yesterday taken ill again and is now in a serious condition.

Major J. H. Ashcraft leaves on the Tennessee this evening for Shiloh to spend a week on business.

THE OPENING NIGHT

A Pleasant Evening at the Y. M. C. A. Reception.

Music and Refreshments Contributed to the Enjoyment of This Auspicious Occasion.

Y. M. C. A. FORMALLY OPENED

A most pleasant social occasion was the Y. M. C. A. reception on Friday evening which, also, marked the formal opening of the association under the new management. Everything looked most attractive, the building has been put in fine order and various improvements made; many were the delighted comments heard on all sides, especially from the ladies, who appreciated the thorough cleanliness and air of comfort that pervaded everything. It is to be regretted that all of Paducah's representative citizens could not have been present to have seen these improvements and to have heard Secretary Hanna's plans for the winter's work outlined. He is an energetic, capable secretary, and most agreeable and pleasant socially.

An interesting musical program was given in the gymnasium building which was effectively decorated in red and white bunting. Misses Letha Puryear and May Davis rendered some brilliant instrumental music; Mr. A. J. Bamberger gave a fine cornet solo, and Mrs. W. C. Gray sang very sweetly two selections. After the program, delightful coffee and cakes were served in the parlors by the women's committee, and later many of the guests amused themselves with the shuffle board, basket ball and other games.

Secretary Hanna made a splendid host, ably assisted by Dr. H. P. Sights, and Mr. Charles Q. O. Leigh, of the board of directors, and some of the older young men members. Regret was expressed at the absence of Physical Director Matthis on account of illness. The attendance of the association members was quite good, and evinced their interest. A number of lady guests were also present. Dr. G. W. Perryman represented the ministers of the city, and two of the fifteen board of directors were present.

The baths are now in the best of condition and ready for use. Mr. Matthis has been working hard to get everything in shape for the opening of the gym classes and is now ready to receive the members' applications and to examine them physically. There will be only a few members of the classes at first but there will be a marked increase before the classes have been opened a month. The gym is in readiness and the suits are here and Mr. Matthis urges that all desiring to enter the classes to come up at once for examination.

The regular Sunday afternoon services or speeches will be started tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 when Evangelist Paul Price will talk to the public. All are invited to the services regardless as to whether they are members of the association or not. A new speaker will be procured each Sunday and this made a feature of the work. For the past two years this plan has been worked and to the best of satisfaction.

State Secretary H. E. Rosevear will be here shortly to inspect the improvements made by the local association and also to note the progress made with the classes, etc.

LOOKING FOR ALLEGED MURDERER.

New York, Sept. 20.—Detectives are looking for William Hooper Young, a grandson of the Mormon leader, Brigham Young, who is suspected of the sensational murder of Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer at Jersey City.

A NICE AFFAIR.

The cantata given last night in the lecture room of the Broadway Methodist church was a very nice affair and was largely attended. It was in charge of Mrs. W. T. Miller and was under the auspices of the Ramsey society.

WEEK'S NEWS IN THE BUSINESS WORLD.

Clearings this week, $618,353
Same week last year, 487,519
Increase, 130,834

Business at the banks the past week was very heavy the clearings showing an increase over last year of over 25 per cent. Demands for money are also heavy.

The wholesale houses report excellent trade. The dry goods, whiskey, and grocery houses especially being very busy with Fall shipments. Wholesale trade all over the country is heavy and retail merchants returning from the markets report it a hard matter to get some lines of goods the factories being sold out. Shipments are slow in coming, too, on account of the very heavy volume of business being done.

The retail stores report a good start off on fall goods and look for a splendid season.

ONE HUNDRED KILLED

Many Persons Crushed to Death in a Negro Church.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 20.—In an awful crush of humanity, caused by a stampede in the Shiloh negro Baptist church at Avenue G and Nineteenth street last night 115 were killed, 90 bodies having been recovered and 87 identified.

The calamity occurred at 9 o'clock just as Booker T. Washington had concluded his address to the national convention of Baptists, and for three hours the scenes around the church were indescribable. Dead bodies were strewn in every direction and the ambulance service of the city was utterly incapacitated to move them.

There were at least 2,000 persons in the edifice when the stampede began.

Just as Booker Washington concluded his address Judge Billou, a negro lawyer from Baltimore, engaged in an altercation with the choir leader concerning an unoccupied seat, and it is said a blow was struck. Some one in the choir cried "They're fighting." Mistaking the word "fighting" for "fire," the congregation rose en masse and started for the door. One of the ministers quickly mounted the rostrum and admonished the people to keep quiet. He repeated the word "quiet" several times and motioned to his hearers to be seated. Again the excited congregation mistook the word "quite" for "fire" and rushed pell mell for the door. Men and women crawled over benches, fought their way into the aisles and those who had fallen were trampled on like cattle.

The screams of women and children added to the horror of the scene and through mere fright many persons fainted and as they fell to the floor were crushed to death.

Negroes who had reached the top of the steps were pushed violently forward and many fell. Before they could move others fell upon them and in fifteen minutes persons were piled upon each other to a height of ten feet. This wall of struggling humanity blocked the entrance and the weight of fifteen hundred persons was pushed against it. More than twenty persons lying on the steps underneath the heap of bodies died from suffocation.

In an hour the church had been practically cleared and the sight which greeted the eyes of those who had come to aid the injured was sickening. Down the aisles and along the outside of the pews, the dead bodies of men and women were strewn and the cries of the maimed and crippled were heartrending. In a few minutes the work of removing the bodies was begun and the walls of the relatives of the dead who had waited on the outside could be heard for several blocks.

QUEEN OF BELGIUM DEAD.

SPA, Belgium, Sept. 20.—Marie Henriette, queen of the Belgians, died here suddenly last night at ten minutes before 8 o'clock. Neither her husband, members of her family nor her majesty's doctors were present at the time of her death. She was seated at a table eating a light dinner, when she was seized with an attack of syncope. Dr. Guillaume, who, in the course of the day, had remarked upon certain disquieting symptoms in the queen's condition, was summoned immediately, but her majesty was dead before he arrived.

CIRCUIT COURT OVER

The Criminal Term Ended This Afternoon in McCracken.

Grand Jury Makes Its Final Report

—Prisoners Called Out and Sentenced.

COURT AGAIN IN DECEMBER

The September term of circuit court came to a close this afternoon, and the grand jury after a three week's session made its final report, bringing in quite a batch of indictments. Today little has been done, except calling a few cases in which the defendants would have had to remain in jail until December had not they consented to plead guilty.

Lillie Sherron was adjudged divorced from Thomas Sherron.

The grand jury failed to indict Gus Hennington for grand larceny and Webster Johnson for detaining a woman and they were released from custody.

There are about half a dozen prisoners in jail who did not get a trial this term.

The grand jury returned four indictments against George S. Allen, until recently assistant superintendent of the Prudential Insurance company here, for forgery. The accused left the city two weeks or more ago and his whereabouts are at present unknown.

It was learned when District Superintendent Francisco came down to assist in an investigation, that Allen had also falsified his reports, and had failed to turn in about four hundred dollars collected the week he disappeared. He also overdrawn the company's account at one of the banks $97 and located at Metropolis, Ill., a check on the same bank for $150. It is estimated that he secured from the company since July 1 about $2,000.

The names forged, and for which he was indicted, were local doctors which were affixed to the death certificates forwarded when several bogus policies were collected.

The following prisoners were sentenced: Moses Moxley, one year for stealing tools from the waterworks plant; Walter Moody, colored, three years for falsely swearing he was not at the Harbour establishment, when he was accused of stealing a shirt; Robert Craig, one year for breaking into the Bloodworth grocery in Mechanicsburg; Riley Gay, one year for false swearing; Spot Polk, life sentence for fatally shooting George Gray; Jerry Gray, one year for grand larceny; Alley Jackson, two years for stealing $20 from the till at the Yeiser and McElrath drug establishment; Will Pryor, two years for assaulting bartender Frank Walston last year near Eleventh and Caldwell by dealing the latter a severe blow in the dark; Columbus Carroll, one year for obtaining money under false pretenses; Lonnie Fequa, life sentence for being accessory to the murder of George Gray; Warner Woolfolk, two years for manslaughter in killing Marshall Owen near Ninth and Trimble streets by shooting him during a carousal; John Schraven, one year for breaking into Dick Sebrer's saloon; William Johnson, two years for stealing revolvers from the George O. Hart hardware establishment; Albert Arams, one year for obtaining from Rosenblatt a box of cigars under pretense that another sent him for them; Lottie Hamilton, one year for going to Cochran's shoe store and procuring a pair of shoes by stating her employer had sent her for them when she had not; Ed Mayberry, three years for picking the pocket of Architect McKinnon during the carnival last May and stealing $30; Julia Starks, one year for shooting at Hun Cannon, at the city hall where the negro was a trusty cleaning up the building; Irvin Springer, one year for breaking into the office of the Melber mill in the county; James Webb, one year for false swearing; Hattie Taylor, two years for stealing a lot of clothing from the Tate home.

J. W. Ingram was granted a divorce from his wife Kate Ingram.

A judgment agreeing on a certain division, was filed in the case of Nora Cook against Pat O'Brien.

Several indictments were returned against persons for allowing games to be operated in their place of business during the carnival. The bawdy houses were all indicted.

Charles Turpin, colored, who cut Joe Burk, colored, on the 14 of September, was this morning sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Willis Monroe, colored, who was in jail awaiting the action of the court on a charge of grand larceny, stealing iron from the railroad, was released on his recognizance. He was ill and the doctor says that he can not possibly last three months longer.

VERY SENSATIONAL

St. Louis Man Claims He Was Married in Hickman.

He Has No Recollection of It and Asks for an Annulment.

St. Louis, Sept. 20.—Was A. H. Eiseman married to Margaret Bressel, a wealthy widow?

In a suit filed in the circuit court here by Eiseman he states that the woman claims she is his wife, but he says he has no recollection of any marriage. He admits being addicted to the use of narcotics, and says that if he and the widow were married he must have been at the time under the influence of a drug.

The woman, Eiseman says, declares that they were married at Hickman, Ky., May 14, 1900. The only evidence he has against that statement is the word of his relatives, who say he was in Missouri on that date.

If the court finds that the marriage really occurred Eiseman asks that it be annulled. Otherwise he wants the woman enjoined from harassing him and calling herself Mrs. Eiseman. He says he is wealthy, and she declares, he asserts, that she will spend all her means to prove him her husband.

WELL KNOWN CITIZEN DEAD.

MR. JAMES DOUGAL, SR., DIES AFTER A SHORT ILLNESS.

Mr. James Dougal, the well known blacksmith, died last night at his home on Jackson street at 10 o'clock after an illness of several days from a complication of diseases. He was born in Nashville and was about 60 years old. He had been a resident of Paducah thirty-three years and was well known here.

He leaves five children, three sons and two daughters. They are: James Dougal of the city, Jesse Dougal of Memphis and Charles Dougal of Denver; Mrs. Belle Barger and Miss Callie Dougal of Paducah. The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, burial at Oak Grove.

OUR NEW ORCHESTRA.

PROF. DEAL WILL PLEASANTLY SURPRISE THE PEOPLE.

Prof. Deal's Kentucky orchestra rehearsed at The Kentucky last night and he is ready to open the season with some of the latest and best musical hits.

He has several of the latest songs which he plays for concert style, something not often heard here, and the execution the musicians give the numbers is excellent. There are six members of the orchestra and all have been thoroughly drilled in the pieces that will be played tonight and tomorrow night. There will be selections from operas and regular orchestra numbers on the program and Prof. Deal will strive to give the best of satisfaction to all.

ALL PAID OFF.

The Illinois Central pay car arrived in the city yesterday afternoon late and paid off last night. The employees were crowded about the car until ten o'clock and this morning several dozens were paid off who were unable to secure their checks last night. The car then proceeded up the Louisville division of the road and will return within the next two days and go south.

THEATRICAL WORLD.

On Monday night the regular opening of The Kentucky will occur and from the way seats went this morning, being placed on sale today, indicates that the S. R. O. sign will be displayed early Monday night. Mr. Harry Beresford is playing this week in Cincinnati at the Walnut theater and jumps from Cincinnati to Paducah direct in a special and will arrive here tomorrow at 6 o'clock. Mr. Montgomery Phoster, the critic of the Commercial Appeal of Cincinnati, considered the most severe critic in the East, says in Monday's paper:

"Mr. Harry Beresford made his first local appearance here as a star at the Walnut theater yesterday afternoon as Seymour Sites in George H. Broadhurst's farcical comedy, 'The Wrong Mr. Wright.'

"It will be remembered that the late and always to be lamented Roland Reed brought this Broadhurst work into conspicuous evidence as a comedy offering several years ago, and, further, that in his long and successful career as a star he never created any character or presented a play that possessed more original and fetching humor or made a stronger appeal to his immense army of admirers throughout his well traveled itinerary. The character of Sites is one that presents many opportunities for an actor of Mr. Beresford's wholesome, honest methods. In make-up and action Mr. Beresford is a new Seymour Sites, and a most worthy and entertaining individual in a theatrical sense—does he appear.

"The company supporting Mr. Beresford is one of careful selection and includes among its members several people of well-recognized ability. Mr. Roy Leonard played the part created by the late extraordinarily clever comedian, Charles Cootes, with considerable skill. Mr. John C. Edwards made a satisfactory Frederick Bond, Mr. Alfred Rumble was clever as Wayland Clingstone, Miss Nellie Lindroth was good as Julia Bond, Miss Emma Dunn bright and vivacious as Tillie Bird and Miss Anne Leonard exceptionally good as Henrietta Oliver. Miss Marie Bishop, Mr. Arthur Jarrett, Mr. Francis Webb and others of the cast acquitted themselves with credit."

There will be nothing at The Kentucky after the formal opening Monday night until next Saturday, September 27, the house being dark until the new Chicago star, Mr. Sam Morris, appears in 'The Peddler's Claim.'

Mr. Morris has been the comedian and leading man for the Hopkins Stock company in Chicago for five years and is known to a great many Paducahans. The Peoria Telegram of Wednesday says:

"A large and lively audience witnessed the performance of 'The Peddler's Claim' at the Illinois theater last night. The play is rather sanguinary, beginning and ending in murder, but one cannot fail to be interested in its many clever features. The few of the play has the unmistakable cleverness of his race and it is a cleverness that does not fail when a woman, pretending love, would pick his pocket. His transfer from one pocket to another is very hastily made, and yet with the politeness that assumes nothing—but prevents. Mr. Sam Morris, who personates Moses Levi, was true to a genial nature and people wanted to shake hands with him."

Arrangements have been consummated for the appearance here again early in October of Arthur C. Alston's splendid company in what has proved one of the greatest dramatic successes of the period, 'At the Old Cross Roads.' It is an intense yet charming story of Southern life, well interspersed with comedy. The press from the Atlantic to the Pacific where the play has been presented has been unanimous in praising play and players. When produced at the Grand opera house, New York City, last season, crowded houses greeted it nightly and it was received in the same manner in all of the large cities visited. The company is headed by Estha Williams, an actress who is very well known here, and who last season made a very strong impression in the same role, that of Parepa, an octoroon.

Manager J. E. English announces positively that the rules relative to arriving late will be strictly enforced this season at The Kentucky. The curtain rises at 8:15, and those who do not arrive before the first act begins will have to stand until the act is over. The late arrivals last season occasioned great annoyance and inconvenience, and will not be countenanced this season. Manager English has concluded that the few who make a practice of going late shall not be permitted to spoil the performance for the many who do not.

It may not be generally known, but nearly all of Grace Belmont's musical instruction was received under the tutelage of the world's famous tenor, Edouard De Reske. Miss Belmont will be prima donna of the musical comedy "My Antoinette."

Marty O'Neil, one of the cleverest of singing and dancing comedians, will have the important comedy role in "My Antoinette" under the direction of Aaron and Murray.

"The Millionaire Tramp" is having a big matinee at The Kentucky today and has a big sale for tonight.

Everybody in town will be at the opening of The Kentucky Monday night. No advance in price.

"Miss Ping-Pong" is the name of a new opera that will be at The Kentucky next month.

THE SUN'S PUZZLE PICTURE.

"THERE IS ONLY ONE YOUNG MAN AT THE SEASHORE." FIND HIM

The Week In Society.

DO YOU KNOW HER?

And what is a girl?
A morsel of ribbon and feathers and lace;
A mischievous elf with an angel's face!
A thorn that will tease you,
A rose that will please you.
A will-o'-the-wisp for eluding your chase—
And that is a girl?
And what is a girl?
A riddle whose meaning no mortal can guess;
With "no" on her tongue when her heart would say "yes!"
Half artful, half simple,
Half pout and half dimple,
Whose eyes will betray what her lips would repress—
And that is a girl!
—Unknown.

THE FOOL AND LOVE.

The Fool wandered, disconsolate, along the thoroughfare called Life. He was a fool because his whole career had been one of failure; he was disconsolate, not because he was a fool, but because there are so many things in this world from which a fool is precluded.

He came to a place where men played at the game called "money-getting." Great fortunes were amassed by shrewd, business-like methods. Plan after plan matured into gold, and as the Fool looked on, he sighed.

"Alas," said he, "intelligence is necessary if one is to play at this game and everybody knows that a fool has no intelligence."

He passed on until he came to a place where men were engaged at the game known as "fame-winning." Many struggled toward different goals. He noted how they overcame obstacle after obstacle; endured hardship after hardship; withstood temptation after temptation; but never lost sight of their purpose.

"Alas," he sobbed, "I cannot play at this game, for it demands an all-absorbing ambition, and a fool never possessed such an ambition."

Then the Fool passed on and arrived at a place where men and women played the game of Love. There were many men wearing their lives away in an endeavor to win riches, with which to gratify the idle whims of the women they loved. Others received but laughter and scorn, though they gave their very heart's blood.

Long and attentively the Fool watched the game and the players, marking well the different methods of play. And he laughed joyously.

"Here at least, is a game I can play," he said, "for a heart is the only requirement, and even a fool possesses a heart."

And as he entered his name in the lists, he added:

"Here I shall stand a fair chance, for, in very truth, all men are fools when it comes to this game of Love."

THE CRASH WAS EXPECTED.

The collapse of the present municipal administration is no surprise to those who have been carefully watching the trend of events. The actions of the men in office have been characterized by a total disregard for law or expediency, and week after week they would do something contrary to law and contrary to the welfare of the people with impunity, until probably it became their fond belief that they could do anything with the absolute assurance that there would be no hereafter. But they reckoned without their host. Those who dance must pay for the music, and now some of them are reaping as they have sowed. Others, seeing the handwriting, have resigned. To retreat under fire shows the essence of some of our lawmakers.

When this administration took charge of affairs in Paducah it knew that the city was in a bad way financially. It knew that not only were the funds exhausted, but money had been expended that was collected for other purposes, and there would not be near enough with all yet to come in from revenue and taxation to run the city during the remainder of the fiscal year. It seems that it would have been within the province of good public officials to take cognizance of these important matters. If they did not know, they were too ignorant and stupid to hold office, and if they did know they were sadly remiss in their duty towards their constituents, to whom this negligence, extravagance and indifference meant increased taxation and reduced benefits. However that may be, with a deficit staring them in the face they proceeded to create new offices and increase salaries. Additional public officers were appointed, their salaries were increased, new offices were created and nearly every salary in the category was increased. At any other time it would not have looked so bad. At that time it could not have looked much worse. The city soon had to borrow money to run the government, but the extravagance never ended. There have been no public improvements of any description, and none provided for. To cap the climax the tax rate was fixed at $1.85, the highest in the city's history, which was to raise $160,000 to run the city seven months.

Early in the year the second class city fight began, and it was opposed by certain influences that have recently made themselves felt in obvious ways. The progressive people finally won, and Paducah entered into an era of prospective progress. Then came the crash. Politics conquered progress, and we were in danger of a setback. The people won, however, and the skeleton in the closet was revealed. The administration sees its finish. If one puts up a head for indorsement in November he will be downed. An element in its own party is sufficient to do it, if there were not others to do it. The rebuke has been deserved and will serve as an example in the future. Disgusted or discouraged, the administration's props are falling away. The game is not worth the candle.

The moral is that the next time the people of Paducah put men in office they should think well before they do it. Good choice means money and happiness to them. It means a good city or a bad city, comforts and protection, or indifference to the public good, grafts and a government dominated by politics.

We should be for Paducah above all things. Politics may cut some figure in a municipal government, but should not cut much. It is the men we want, no matter what their politics. The custom of voting for anything that is put up under the device of this or that party should be eliminated from municipal practices, and the people should vote for the most progressive man, no matter what his politics, for in the end his politics has little to do with the inauguration of improvements, the advancement of the city or the size of the tax rate. This will undoubtedly be hard to do down here where political feeling is perhaps unreasonably strong, but it must be done if we expect to push Paducah and put her where she belongs.

In November vote for good men, and we shall have a good city government. Because a candidate belongs to your political party is no reason he is a good man for the position he seeks. If a man of some other political party would probably do better in the place, vote for him. His politics can't affect his public service in a city the size of Paducah to any alarming extent. Less politics in municipal government means more progress to the people as a whole.

THE CONGRESSIONAL RACE

There is to be an election of congressman in this district in November and it is reasonable to presume that all good citizens want a good man chosen for the place. The Democracy of today is not the Democracy of yesterday, and among the back numbers are W. J. Bryan and the Kansas City platform. If a man is for W. J. Bryan and the Kansas City platform when his party is everywhere in the country ignoring Bryan and repudiating the platform, this man is doubtless not a good representative of his party, and should not expect its support. The reason these remarks are made is because the mouthpiece of Bryanism, Goebelism and kindred isms in this end of the state, the News-Democrat, said of the Democratic nominee on March 28, 1902:

"Now that the public eye is turned for the time on the First district's new Democratic nominee for congress, it may be of interest to know that he is an unreconstructed Chicago and Kansas City platform Democrat, a devoted personal friend and political follower of William J. Bryan ready and anxious to vote for him again for president, and unalterably opposed to the plans of the reorganizers. These are Ollie James' sentiments and he stands ready to go into the convention halls or on the stump to do battle for them."

The question is, if Bryanism and the Kansas City platform are repudiated by the Democratic party, and Mr. James is for Bryanism and the Kansas City platform, what is the reason he should not be repudiated, also? Mr. James, we are informed, is an "unreconstructed Democrat," and if he isn't he is in the wrong band wagon? Does he expect the Democrats of the First District to straggle so far behind their party as to indorse that political corpse, W. J. Bryan, and the six feet of earth in which he is buried, the Kansas City platform?

JUST ONE WORD that word is

It refers to Dr. Tutt's Liver Pills and MEANS HEALTH.

Troubled with indigestion?
Sick headache?
Vertigo?
Bilious?

ANY of these symptoms and many others indicate inaction of the LIVER

You Need
Tutt's Pills
Take No Substitute.

Of course it is up to the Democrats what to do with this "unreconstructed" aspirant. Progressive Democrats will find a straight out and out Republican better representative of their ideas than a Bryan-Kansas City platform-Populist ghost.

THE USUAL FAKE.

The News-Democrat yesterday published the following: "It is the rumor over the city today that the negroes will nominate negro Republican candidates for aldermen and councilmen from the First and probably other wards in the city. It is claimed that the negroes hope for success in the First ward on account of the many residents of their color residing in that part of the city. Some of the negroes go so far as to say that they will have the support and vote of many white Republicans in this effort to get a little official pie for the bulk of the Republican voters of the city."

Those who know the News-Democrat's political methods will pay no attention to such a palpable fabrication. If there are any so unfortunate as to take stock in anything of the kind, however, they are respectfully informed that there is not a particle of foundation for such a fake. It is only a method of the politicians who see that their day is over in Paducah, to divert public attention from themselves and their methods.

There is not a negro in the city of Paducah who wants any office, and no sensible one who would accept one if it were offered him. There was never any report or rumor to the effect mentioned in the article, and such was known to be the fact when it was published.

There are two sides to the pugilistic controversy in Louisville. One is that such exhibitions, whether brutal or simply scientific, please a large number of people whose rights are entitled to as much consideration as those of the element that opposes them. Those most vigorously opposed to them are usually those who know least about them, but however that may be, it is doubtful if it is a safe and just legal procedure for persons of a prejudice to be permitted to go into the courts of the state and prevent something that it is claimed is going to be a legitimate, lawful exhibition with nothing to sustain the claim that it is not except a mere presumption. It seems that if the exhibition, which could be no more than a misdemeanor, proved to be unlawful the participants would be liable, and then could be called to account after they had violated the law. Such injunctions as that granted at Frankfurt are dangerous to the liberty vouchsafed to every person under our constitution.

Speaker Henderson does not differ with his party on a single material issue. On the other hand his views are in strict accord with those of the Republican party. The Republicans of Iowa have strayed off, and he would have had to represent them in congress had he not withdrawn. As he could not consistently represent their views he quit.

Attorney Youts says here's the usual greeting heard on the streets these days: Jones—"How are you feeling today?" Smith—"Oh, pretty second class, thank you."

Why He Believed in Fairies.
W. B. Yeats, the poet, tells how once he argued with a Galway peasant who, a rare thing in Ireland, boasted he was an atheist. "But," said Mr. Yeats, "you believe in fairies?" "Fairies?" said the atheist. "Sure, fairies stand to reason!"

GASOLINE FAMINE.

LOCAL DEALERS ARE UNABLE TO SECURE A SUPPLY.

There is a gasoline famine in the city at present and it is hardly possible to secure any. Those who cook by gasoline find it hard indeed to buy it.

The manufacturers of refined oil are overstocked with it and the gasoline supply is therefore low, as gasoline is one of the products of crude oil and comes from crude oil in the manufacture of refined oil. If the demand for refined oil is not increased the gasoline market will be bare of gasoline and it will hardly be possible to secure any in a short time.

USED THE CAGE.

HOW A PASSENGER GOT AWAY WITH AN ILLINOIS CENTRAL CONDUCTOR.

Dogs and cats and other pets of a quadruped species are not permitted on passenger trains under certain conditions but a woman got ahead of Conductor Miller, of the Fulton and Louisville accommodation train which passed through the city this morning at 7:40 o'clock.

She had an empty bird cage in her hand and under her arm she carried a large yellow cat.

“Madam you can not carry that cat on the train unless you hold him all the time and see that he does not interfere with the other passengers in any way,” Conductor Miller informed her. She hesitated as she started on the train but a happy thought striking her opened her bird cage and forced the cat into it, closing the door and depositing the cage on the coach seat. The cage was a small Canary cage and the cat could barely get in and once inside had to curl up and lie in one position all the time. This is the first instance that has ever come under the observation of the conductor where a cat or other animal has been carried through in this manner.

A TRUE SAYING.

The wrong kind of food fills more graves than any other cause. It is easy to retain good health by the use of proper food and it is pleasant too. The Rev. G. M. Lodge of Iowa City, Iowa, made a successful experiment.

“I am 65 years of age and a preacher. Last winter I went to Kansas and had charge of two churches. A little use of Grape Nuts food made me believe it to be a true brain and nerve builder; I wanted to experiment further with it so I used Grape Nuts for breakfast and supper for more than three months with the best results. I not only never had better health in my life but the effect on my brain was wonderful. I had become forgetful of names and persons and things, was often unable to recall even the names of old friends.

After using Grape Nuts for two weeks forgotten names came to me and as the days and weeks passed my memory was wonderfully quickened as to names and dates, and mental ability in general. I could preach without manuscript or notes as never before and in a month or less I said to myself, ‘Grape Nuts is a brain food,’ and as such I now recommend it.

“It also gives health and blood, nerve and muscle. Cheerfully and earnestly I advise students, clergymen, teachers and all mental workers to use Grape Nuts steadily and systematically if you wish to excel in mental and literary work, renew your age and feel well. It is the best nerve and brain food I have ever known.”

KIDNAPPED

THE ADVENTURES OF DAVID BALFOUR IN THE YEAR 1751

BY ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

CHAPTER XXIV.

IN BALQUIDDER AND ACROSS THE FORTH

"What's the wrong with him?" said she.

At the door of the first house we came to Alan knocked, which was no very safe enterprise in such a part of the highlands as the Braes of Balquidder.

Chance served us very well, for it was a household of MacIcraens that we found, where Alan was not only welcome for his name's sake, but known by reputation. Here, then, I was to go to bed without delay, and a doctor fetched, who found me in a sorry plight. But whether because he was a very good doctor, or I a very young, strong man, I lay bedridden for no more than a week, and before a month I was able to take the road again with a good heart.

All this time Alan would not leave me, though I often pressed him, and indeed his foolishness in staying was a common subject of outcries with the two or three friends that were let into the secret. He hid by day in a hole of the braes under a little wood; and at night, when the coast was clear, would come into the house to visit me. I need not say if I was pleased to see him; Mrs. MacIcraen, our hostess, thought nothing good enough for such a guest; and as Duncan Dhu (which was the name of our host) had a pair of pipes in his house and was much of a lover of music, the time of my recovery was quite a festival and we commonly turned night into day.

The soldiers let us be, although once a party of two companies and some dragoons went by in the bottom of the valley, where I could see them through the window as I lay in bed. What was much more astonishing, no magistrate came near me, and there was no question put of whence I came or whither I was going; and in that time of excitement I was as free of all inquiry as though I had lain in a desert. Yet my presence was known before I left to all the people of Balquidder and the adjacent parts; many coming about the house on visits, and these (after the custom of the country) spreading the news among their neighbors. The bills, too, had now been printed. There was one pinned near the foot of my bed, where I could read my own not very flattering portrait, and in larger characters the amount of the blood money that had been set upon my life.

Duncan Dhu and the rest that knew that I had come there in Alan's company could have entertained no doubt of who I was; and many others must have had their guess. For though I had changed my clothes, I could not change my age or person, and lowland boys of eighteen were not so rife in these parts of the world, and above all about that time, that they could fail to put one thing with another and connect me with the bill. So it was at least. Other folk keep a secret among two or three near friends, and somehow it leaks out, but among these clansmen it is told to a whole countryside, and they will keep it for a century.

The month, as I have said, was not yet out, but it was already far through August, and beautiful warm weather, with every sign of an early and great harvest, when I was pronounced able for my journey. Our money was now run to so low an ebb that we must think first of all on speed, for if we came not soon to Mr. Rankellor's, or if when we came there he should fail to help me, we must surely starve. In Alan's view besides the hunt must have now greatly slackened, and the line of the Forth, and even Stirling bridge, which is the main pass over that river, would be watched with little interest.

"It's a chief principle in military affairs," said he, "to go where you are least expected. Forth is our trouble, ye ken the saying, 'Forth bridges the wild highlandman.' Well, if we seek to creep round about the head of that river and come down by Kippen or Balfour, it's just precisely there that they'll be looking to lay hands on us. But if we go straight to the auld Brig' of Stirling, I'll lay my sword they let us pass unannounced."

The first night accordingly we pushed to the house of a MacIcraen in Strathire, a friend of Duncan's, where we slept the twenty-first of the month, and whence we set forth again about the fall of night to make another easy stage. The twenty-second we lay in a heather bush on a hillside in Uam Var, within view of a herd of the deer, the happiest ten hours of sleep in a fine breathing sunshine and on bone-dry ground that I have ever tasted. That night we struck Allan Water and followed it down, and coming to the edge of the hills saw the whole career of Stirling under foot, as flat as a pancake, with the town and castle on a hill in the midst of it, and the moon shining on the Links of Forth.

"Now," said Alan, "I kenae if ye care, but ye're in your own land again. We passed the highland line in the first hour; and now if we could but pass your crooked water, we might cast our bonnets in the air."

As soon as the dusk began to fall we struck for the bridge of Stirling, keeping to the fields and under the field fences.

The bridge is close under the castle hill, an old, high, narrow bridge with pinnacles along the parapet, and there seemed to be no guard upon the passage.

I was for pushing straight across, but Alan was more wary.

At last there came by an old, hobbling woman with a crutch stick, who first stopped a little, close to where we lay, and bemoaned herself and the long way she had traveled, and then set forth again up the steep spring of the bridge. The woman was so little that we soon lost sight of her, and only heard the sound of her steps and her stick drawn slowly farther away.

"She's bound to be across now," I whispered.

"Nae," said Alan; "her foot still sounds boss [hollow] upon the bridge."

And just then, "Who goes?" cried a voice, and we hear the butt of a musket rattle on the stones.

"This'll never do," said Alan. "This'll never, never do for us, David."

And without another word he began to crawl away through the fields, and a little after, being well out of eyeshot, got to his feet again and struck along a road that led to the eastward.

"Well!" said I.

"Well," said Alan, "what would you have? They're none such fools as I took them for. We have still the Forth to pass, David—wary fall the rains that fed and the hillsides that guided it!"

"And why go east?" said I.

"Oh, just upon the chance!" said he. "If we cannae pass the river we'll have to see what we can do for the firth."

"There are fords upon the river and none upon the firth," said I.

"To be sure there are fords and a bridge forby," quoth Alan; "and of what service when they are watched?"

"Well," said I, "but a river can be swum."

"By them that have the skill of it," returned he; "but I have yet to hear that either you or me is much of a hand at that exercise; and for my part I swim like a stone."

"I'm not up to you in talking back, Alan," I said; "but I can see we're making bad work. If it's hard to pass a river, it stands to reason it must be worse to pass a sea."

"But there's such a thing as a boat," says Alan, "or I'm the more deceived."

"Aye, and such a thing as money," says I. "But for us that have neither one nor other, they might just as well not have been invented."

"Ye think so?" said Alan.

"I do that," said I.

"David," says he, "ye're a man of small invention and less faith. But let me set my wits upon the stone, and if I cannae beg, borrow nor yet steal a boat I'll make one!"

"I think I see ye!" said I. "And what's more than all that, if ye pass a bridge it can tell no tales, but if we pass the firth there's the boat on the wrong side—somebody must have brought it—the countryside will all be in a bizz!"

"Man!" cried Alan, "if I make a boat I'll make a body to take it back again! So leave me with no more of your nonsense, but walk (for that's what you've got to do) and let Alan think for ye."

All night, then, we walked through the north side of the cause under the high line of the Ochil mountains, and by Alloa and Clackmannan and Culross, all of which we avoided, and about ten in the morning, mighty hungry and tired, came to the little clachan of Limekilns. This is a place that sits near in by the waterside and looks across the Hope to the town of the Queensferry.

"Oh, Alan!" said I, "to think of it! Over there, there's all that heart could want waiting me; and the birds go over, and the boats go over—all that please can go, but just me only! Oh, man, but it's a heartbreak!"

In Limekilns we entered a small change house, which we only knew to be a public by the wand over the door, and bought some bread and cheese from the good looking lass that was the servant. This we carried with us in a bundle, meaning to sit and eat it in a bush of wood on the seashore that we saw some third part of a mile in front.

As we went, I kept looking across the water and sighing to myself; and though I took no heed of it, Alan had fallen into a muse. At last he stopped in the way.

"Did ye take heed of the lass we bought this off?" says he, tapping on the bread and cheese.

"To be sure," said I, "and a bonny lass she was."

"Ye thought that?" cries he. "Man, David, that's good news."

"In the name of all that's wonderful, why so?" says I. "What good can that do?"

"Well," said Alan, with one of his droll looks, "I was rather in hopes it would maybe get us that boat."

"If it were the other way about, it would be liker it," said I.

"That's all that you ken, ye see," said Alan. "I don't want the lass to fall in love with ye, I want her to be sorry

THE BRADFIELD REGULATOR CO.
ATLANTA, GA.

OF JE, DAVIS, to whom end there is no manner of need that she should take you for a beauty. Let me see," looking me curiously over. "I wish ye were a wee bit paler; but apart from that ye'll do fine for my purpose—ye have a fine hangdog, rag and tatter, clapperclaw kind of a look to ye, as if ye had stolen the coat from a potato bogie. Come, right about and back to the change house for that boat of ours."

I followed him, laughing.

"David Balfour," said he, "ye're a very funny gentleman by your way of it, and this is a very funny employ for ye, no doubt. For all that, if ye have any affection for my neck (to say nothing of your own) ye will perhaps be kind enough to take this matter responsibly. I am going to do a bit of play acting, the bottom ground of which is just exactly as serious as the gallows for the pair of us. So bear it, if ye please, in mind, and conduct yourself accordingly."

"Well, well," said I, "have it as you will."

As we got near the clachan he made me take his arm and hang upon it like one almost helpless with weariness, and by the time he pushed open the change house door he seemed to be half carrying me. The maid appeared surprised (as well she might be) at our speedy return, but Alan had no words to spare for her in explanation, helped me to a chair, called for a glass of brandy with which he fed me in little sips, and then breaking up the bread and cheese helped me to eat it like a nursery lass, the whole with that grave, concerned, affectionate countenance that might have imposed upon a judge. It was small wonder if the maid was taken with the picture we presented of a poor, sick, overwrought lad and his most tender comrade. She drew quite near and stood leaning with her back on the next table.

"What's like wrong with him?" said she at last.

Alan turned upon her, to my great wonder, with a kind of fury. "Wrong!" cries he. "He's walked more hundreds of miles than he has hairs upon his chin, and slept oftener in wet heather than dry sheets. Wrong, quo' she! Wrong enough, I would think! Wrong indeed!" and he kept grumbling to himself as he fed me, like a man ill pleased.

"He's young for the like of that," said the maid.

"Ower young," said Alan, with his back to her.

"He would be better riding," says she. "And where could I get a horse for him?" cried Alan, turning on her with the same appearance of fury. "Would ye have me steal?"

I thought this roughness would have sent her off in dudgeon, as indeed it closed her mouth for the time. But my companion knew very well what he was doing, and for as simple as he was in some things of life had a great fund of roguishness in such affairs as these.

"Ye neednae tell me," she said at last: "ye're gentry."

"Well," said Alan, softened a little (I believe against his will) by this artless comment, "and suppose we were? Did ever folk hear that gentrified put money in folks' pockets?"

She sighed at this, as if she were herself some disinherited great lady. "Nae," says she, "that's true indeed."

"Has he nae friends?" said she in a tearful voice.

"That has he so," cried Alan, "if we could but win to them!—friends, and rich friends, beds to lie in, food to eat, doctors to see him—and here he must tramp in the dubs and sleep in the heather like a beggarman."

"And why that?" says the lass.

"My dear," says Alan, "I cannae very safely say, but I'll tell ye what I'll do instead," says he, "I'll whistle ye a bit tune." And with that he leaned pretty far over the table and in a mere breath of a whistle, but with a wonderful pretty sentiment, gave her a few bars of "Charlie Is My Darling."

"Whesht," says she, and looked over her shoulder to the door.

"That's it," said Alan.

"And him so young!" cried the lass.

"He's old enough to"—And Alan struck his forehead on the back part of his neck, meaning that I was old enough to lose my head.
